Houston Grand Opera presents web-only opera series based on true stories of star-crossed love

Pilot episode to be released online April 20

Houston, March 19, 2018—Houston Grand Opera (HGO) invites audiences to explore 21st–century opera viewing with Star Cross’d, a new streaming series of short opera films based on true personal experiences with Romeo and Juliet themes. Each episode will include a line from Shakespeare’s play, Romeo and Juliet. The series’s pilot, “Boundless,” will be released online at HGO.org on April 20 to coincide with the opening of HGO’s new production of Bernstein’s West Side Story (also based on Romeo and Juliet). “Boundless” tells the story of Alma, a middle-aged woman who seeks personal fulfillment at a crossroads in her life and begins a relationship with Luc, an artistic soul 16 years her junior. When a shadow looms over their happy ending, Alma guides her lover to his destiny. The plot is based on a true story by Houston resident Aryana Rose, who originally shared it at a storytelling event held by The Moth. The story went on to become one of the most viewed on The Moth’s Facebook page.

The composer for the Star Cross’d series is Avner Dorman; the librettist is Stephanie Fleischmann. The “Boundless” episode will be filmed at locations around Houston March 19–21 and produced by Junction Road Films, a North Carolina-based video production company. The Houston-based cast includes Cecilia Duarte as Alma, Mark Thomas as Luc, and Alexandra Smither as Sophie.

Star-cross’d is a production of HGOco, the company’s education and community engagement initiative. “This series explores Romeo and Juliet-themed stories through a contemporary lens,” says HGOco director Carleen Graham. “With online-only series trending, we hope that Star-cross’d will offer stories and a viewing platform that speak to younger viewers about opera in a fresh way.”

HGOco has begun a search for the next three episodes. Interested writers with a compelling tale to tell are invited to record their stories that include a line from Romeo and Juliet, upload them to YouTube or SoundCloud, and send the link to starcrossd@hgo.org or use the hashtag #HGOStarCrossd. Stories will be adapted into 15–minute opera webisodes. Submissions will be
